

Another milestone achieved!

We are humbled and proud to announce that Pun Hlaing Hospital "PHH" - Hlaing Thar Yar has maintained Joint Commission International (JCI) gold seal to provide our patients with the best level of international quality healthcare while focusing on patient safety as our commitment.

PHH -Hlaing Tharyar, re-accredited by the Joint Commission International (JCI) in July 2021, means our hospital provides safe services aligned with the international quality care to our patients, families, and staff. Maintaining the JCI gold seal is proof that we, as the organization, are working towards one of our visions: to provide International Quality to our patients. We believe JCI is a catalyst to impact the healthcare standards of Myanmar.

The PHH flagship hospital is the first hospital in Myanmar to receive ISO accreditation in 2010 and achieved American Joint Commission International Accreditation (JCI) in August 2017 for quality and patient safety.

Through sheer courage and determination, we survive, protect our staff and patients, and contribute to the community.

More on: <https://www.jointcommissioninternational.org/about-jci/accredited-organizations/#q=pun%20hlaing>